Official notice has been served on Town, Treasurer J. M. Pendleton that ourtland P Chapman has instituted suit against the town of Westerly in lamages of $1,750, by reason of alleged damages of $1,750, by reason of alleged injury to his property in connection with the rebuilding of the Watch Hill road about two years ago.

Mr. Chapman, through his counsel, Judge John W. Sweeny, appealed from the action of the town council in accepting the report of the committee on the layout of the road, as the sum allotted to Mr. Chapman was not sate. otted to Mr. Chapman was not sat-isfactory, although verbal agreement with the committee fixed the sum specified in the report. The matter taken to the superior court and the decree of the council was set aside, thus paving the way for the present thus paving the way for the present suit.

It is alleged that Mr. Chapman offered the town gratis as much of his land as was required in making the improvements, under condition that his walls and fences would be satisfactorily rebuilt. No complaint came from Mr. Chapman until after the work was completed. He then claimed that the town had taken more of his land than was necessary to make the improvements, hence the suit. Mr. Chapman is the only property owner on the Watch Hill road who claims damages by reason of the improvements.

Samuel G. Cottrell, chief engineer of the Westerly fire department, has re-ceived a letter from Mrs. Elizabeth R. Chester, complimenting the efficient work done by the department, at the fire on her property, one week ago last Saturday morning. Mrs. Chester en-closed a check for $25 and requested closed a check for $25 and requested Chief Cottrell to distribute that amount to the companies of the department. The letter also commends the chief upon his ability in building up the department to the present state of efficiency.

Many experiments have been made by the Rhode Island beard of rublic roads towards the securing of a dust preventive to use on the atate high-ways. A report of the board tells of these experiments, including the "Mixing Method—With the exception of the addition of the bituminous mix-ture, the method of construction is ture, the method of construction is similar to that employed in the buildsimilar to that employed in the building of an ordinary macadam road. After the sub-grade has been thoroughly rolled, the No. 1 broken stone, varying in size from 1 1-4 to 2 1-2 inches in their longest dimensions, is spread to a depth of six inches and rolled to 4 inches. The No. 2 stone, varying in size from 1 1-2 to 1 1-4 inches in their longest dimensions, is next deposited on dumping boards and thoroughly mixed with hot bituminous mixture with the aid of rakes and shovels. This mixture is applied on the No. 1 course to a depth of three inches and rolled to two inches. A thin coat of dust which will pass through a 1-2-inch mesh is spread on the surface and rolled into the No. 2 course to fill up the voids and provide a smooth surface.

"Penertation Method—The penetration method of construction of bituminous macadam road consists in the formation of the No. 1 and No. 2 courses, as in the construction of an ordinary macadam road. On the No. 2 course, before it is rolled, the hot bituminous mixture is spread by means of dippers and allowed to penetrate. The No. 2 course is then rolled and covered with a thin coat of screenings, which are also rolled, thus completing the smooth surface.

"Gladwell System—The Gladwell system of constructing bituminous macadam consists in spreading on the No. 1 course, after rolling, a bituminous
